Fig. 1. Appearance of the journal “European Journal of Economic Studies” 2012–2022 years) (Cherkas Global University Press, 2022).

The idea to launch scientific journal came from the director of “Academic Publishing House Researcher” – Doctor of History, Professor Aleksandr Cherkasov in 2012, because of the expressed need to increase the number of publications that would publish papers from of economic studies. The intention was for the new journal to be open to the widest range of economy research areas, but for the authors of the articles to point out the practical implications and the possibility of applying the obtained results in presenting their research. According to this concept, the name “European Journal of Economic Studies” was chosen. After the decision to launch the journal, further elaboration of the idea and realization of activities necessary for launching the publication was entrusted to a team of scientific researchers and associates from various scientific disciplines from the "Academic Publishing House Researcher" headed by Professor Aleksandr Cherkasov (Rajović, Bulatović, 2016).
