PROJECT WEB-SITE : <http://www.arise-project.org/>

This project is co-funded by the European Union through the IST programme under FP6 with the contract number IST-027039.

ARiSE will develop a new technology, the Augmented Reality Teaching Platform (ARTP) by adapting existing augmented reality (AR) technology for museums to the needs of students in primary and secondary school classes.

The aim is to create an innovative teaching aid, enabling teachers to develop, with a moderate effort, new teaching practices for teaching scientific and cultural content to school classes in an easy to comprehend way. Using 3D presentations and user-friendly interaction techniques will lead to a better understanding of scientific and cultural content coupled with high student motivation. The students will have the possibility to interact together with the virtual objects in a virtual shared space provided by an AR display system and thereby perform learning by doing instead of learning by reading or listening.

Furthermore, the new technology will promote team work, collaboration between classes in the same school or even remote collaboration between schools in different countries in a learner-centered approach.

Natural Science Education Research Centre from Siauliai University in the frames of this project will organize three international scientific conferences:

1. International Scientific Conference
USING INFORMATION & COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGY IN THE PROCESS OF SCIENCE EDUCATION, 1-2 December 2006, Šiauliai, Lithuania.
2. International Scientific Conference
USING INFORMATION & COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGY IN THE PROCESS OF SCIENCE EDUCATION, 5-7 December 2007, Šiauliai, Lithuania.
3. International Scientific Conference
USING INFORMATION & COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGY IN THE PROCESS OF SCIENCE EDUCATION, 30/November - 03/ December 2008, Šiauliai, Lithuania.
